Hit and Run Driver Speeds Away In Night After Killing Chicago Boys Near Orland

A wanton murder was committed on the Southwest Highway in the vicinity of the Southmoor Golf club Monday evening, when a vampire auto struck and killed two boys who were walking with their pet dog on the west shoulder of the highway.

According to witnesses, the hit-and-run autoist ran off the pavement, hit the boys and then turned back onto the pavement and sped away to the south.

The bodies of the boys were found near 131st street. They were brought to the office of Dr. W. R. Schussler in Orland Park. Upon examination the doctor pronounced the one boy dead, his neck having been broken. The other boy was barely alive. He was placed on a stretcher and hurried to the Little Company of Mary hospital at 95th street, but he was dead before the hospital was reached.

At first mystery surrounded the identity of the boys, as they had nothing on them by which they could be identified. Both were dressed somewhat like Boy Scouts, and both wore Sam Browne belts which gave rise to the theory they might be Boy Scouts. All the Boy Scout camps in Palos Park and vicinity were searched for missing boys, but none were missing.

Pieces of broken glass, a boy's oxford and a bottle of mercurachrome and a slip of paper with the numbers 46-19498 were found near 135th street. Blood stains were also noticed along side the pavement. Whether the boys were hit at this point or not has not been discovered.

A description of the boys was broadcast over the radio and the Chicago papers carried accounts of the accident.

The bodies of the boys were removed to a Blue Island morgue to await identification. The county and state police put forth their best efforts to learn the identity of the boys and to find the license number of the vampire car. As the accident occurred late in the evening the people who witnessed the accident did not get the license number of the hit-and-run driver.

Tuesday morning George Pitzmeyer, an unemployed railroad man residing at 6853 Ridgeland Avenue read an account of the case and up-

Mrs. Lester N. Stoltenberg,
Publicity Chairman

On July 12, 1935 the Tinley Park Legion Auxiliary met in regular meeting in the Legion Hall. There were 15 members present including our president, Mrs. Felton, who brought the meeting to order at 8 p. m.

The committee chairwomen were called upon to make their reports.

Rehabilitation chairman, Mrs. M. West read a letter received from Mrs. Bloom thanking her for the magazine, which she sent to Chester for the disabled men.

Mrs. Amanda Brandau, Child Welfare chairman reported that she is preparing a box of birthday gifts to send to Billy George at Normal, Ill. We all hope he has a very happy birthday.

Americanism chairman, Mrs. H. Freitag, read some very important rules of the flag code and brought to the attention of the members the proper way of handling the flag of our country.

Mrs. E. Wallin, Fedac chairman, had a very interesting Fedac program arranged, in which all the members took part. This year the Fedac conference was entertained by Belgium and the readings were about the interesting occupations and cities of Belgium.

The installation of the new officers for the coming year will be held on August 3rd in conjunction with the American Legion. All the members are asked to attend, so do not forget the date.

The meeting came to a close at 10 p. m., after which our president Mrs. Felton had a very delightful lunch served in the basement.

The last 4th District meeting of the year was held at the Ridge Park Field House in Chicago on July 16. Election of officers was held and the Tinley Park Unit is very proud to announce that one of their most loyal members, Mrs. Frances Rowden was elected Director of the Fourth District. We are very happy to have one of our members attain this height and we all wish her a year of good luck and success in her new

WORTH FARMER FINDS STOLEN TRUCK IN MOKENA

Recently A. C. Benck, a truck farmer, hired a young lad giving his name as Robert Nelson, 25, when the young man called at his home and asked for work.

The lad appeared quiet and was industrious. He had relatives in Plymouth, Indiana and Lansing, Mich., and received mail from Plymouth.

Mr. Benck trusted the boy. He and his family left the boy in charge of their home while they went to Hammond, Indiana, Thursday evening. They left home about seven o'clock. When they returned several hours later, they were surprised to find the garage wide open and the two-ton Graham truck which is used in the truck farm work, gone. Upon entering the house, they found the bedroom ransacked and $50 in cash, two gold watches, rings and a lavelier, missing, and also the boy.

Friday morning, N. F. Heiman, residing on the northeast side of Mokena, saw the truck with Mr. Benck's name and telephone number on it, standing across the street from his place. When the truck was not called for during the day, Mr. Heiman called Mr. Benck on the

SAY WATER HALTS OIL WELL FLOW

There is feverish activity at the well being drilled for oil on the McGlashen farm southeast of Frankfort. The reason for this is the anticipation that oil has been found, but it is said that 1700 feet of water in the shaft which is 2,001 feet deep, is preventing the oil from coming thru. The work of pumping the water out of the shaft has been delayed by the lack of the necessary casings to sheath out the well. Truck loads of casings have been hauled to the well site all this week and the work of driving the tubes down is steadily going on and soon as the casings have been assembled to the very bottom of the well and the water pumped out, oil is expected to flow.

There seems to be little question but what oil has been found in this county. There are visible evidences at the well. The fact remains however, that the oil must run a minimum of five barrels a day before it has commercial value. The Chicago syndicate who are sinking this well has every hope that it will reach that figure, and by far exceed it.

For many months a crew of drill-

Royal Blue Store

Opens In Tinley Park Friday

A Royal Blue Store is opening Friday of this week in the Hollstein building in Tinley Park.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. E. Schultz of Morgan Park are operating the new store. They wish to make it plain that their's is not a chain store, but a home-owned store.

Mr. Schultz has stocked the new store with a fine line of quality merchandise. All new fixtures have been installed.

Mr. Schultz expects to add a meat department to his store in the near future.

Mokena Man Shoots

At Oil Thief

Tom Moore caught a man stealing gas from his automobile one night the past week and took a shot at him but failed to hit him and the thief got away.

Mrs. Demko of Mokena was awakened by maulers one night a week ago and fired a revolver. The shooting awakened the neighbors but a thorough search of the neighborhood failed to reveal a trace of the disturbers.

Mokena's Front St.

To Be Repaired Soon

Mokena is preparing to begin extensive repairs on it's Front street. Mr. McCoy of the engineering firm of Mulford and McCoy of Chicago Heights has been on the job this week surveying the street. An asphalt top is to be placed on this thoroughfare.

PLENTY OF MUSIC FOR LEGION PICNIC

There will be plenty of music in Orland Park Sunday, August 4th when the Orland Legion Post hold their annual parade and picnic. A number of drum and bugle corps are to be in the parade and at the picnic in the Gee Grove along Orland Lake. The Frankfort band will also be heard in a band concert during the afternoon.

There will be all kinds of refreshments served on the grounds. There will be various games and sports.

The feature of the evening will be a free dance on an open air dancing floor. Don't fail to come to Orland Park for a good time, Aug. 4th.

Mokena Garden

Club to Hold

Flower Show

The Mokena Garden Club met at the home of Mrs. Selma Krapp. There were sixteen members present.

Mrs. C. Sippel read "Garden Column". Mrs. A. Braun read a paper on "Chinese Vegetables". Mrs. H. Mall read a paper on "Delphiniums" and Mrs. T. Moore read "This Week in the Garden."

The Mokena Garden Club received second prize on a basket at the recent Tinley Flower Show. Mrs. Anton Benson received seven ribbons.

The club will sponsor a Flower Show in Mokena on Friday, Sept. 6. There will be a basket of groceries awarded at the Garden Show.

At the next meeting to be held at Mrs. O. Bartel's home on August 6 there will be judging on bouquet arrangement. Each member is to bring a vase of flowers.

Death Takes Former

Green Garden Man

Frank Kaiser, former Green Garden resident, aged 75 years, died Tuesday morning in the State hos-on going to the Blue Island morgue identified one of the boys as his son John, aged 14 and the other boy as his chum, George Maloney, 12, of 6756 Ridgeland Avenue.

The father declared the boys had started on a hike Monday to visit relatives in Bloomington.

The dog who had accompanied the boys, followed the crowd to Orland Park. When one of the boys was placed in an auto to be taken to the hospital, he wagged his tail and wanted to get in the car with him, but when he was not allowed to do so a downcast look came over his face. One of the county police then took the dog with him to the police station at Willow Springs.

The Will County Sheriff's office at Joliet reports that Mrs. A. R. Bonke of 5419 Rockwell Street, Chicago, had notified the Cook County police at Homewood, Tuesday morning after reading an account of the accident, that she was driving on the Southwest highway the night of the accident, and saw a car weaving in and out on the highway and took the car number which when checked up was found to belong to John J. Bormet of Mokena. Mr. Bormet was taken to the Cook County police station at Homewood for questioning, Wednesday afternoon, and the Homewood police say he was released shortly afterward.

Jake Kramer of Orland Park met the boys walking south on the Southwest highway while he was driving to Chicago about 20 minutes before their broken bodies were found.

A hit-and-run driver who runs away from the scene of an accident leaving his victims dead or dying, is no better than a gangster murderer and merits a seat in the electric chair. Until such outlaws are severely dealt with, they will continue to infest our highways and continue to be a menace to life and property.

Tinley Police Enforce Ordinances

Police Chief Glodi who is taking the place of Harry Uthe during the latter's vacation, is enforcing the ordinances of Tinley Park. Wednesday afternoon he compelled an out of town electrician and plumber to take out a permit as required by village ordinance.

Peddlers having no permit or license have to either procure same or they can not peddle.

Mokena Man

Appointed Receiver

The Wolf Road right-of-way question is getting a step nearer settlement with the appointment of Ona E. McGovney, Mokena real estate man, by Judge Wilson of the Will County Circuit Court last week as Reciever, for the 160 acre tract south of Mokena known as the McCord property but the title of which appears to be in the name of Albert F. Marthe of Morrison, Ill.

The property is heavily encumbered but the note holders are satisfied to sell the needed land for the Wolf Road right-of-way thru this tract. This could not be done before a receiver had been appointed. It is hoped that quick action will now be taken to clean up the right-of-way matter so work on Wolf Road can be started this fall.

This Duck

Drinks Beer

There is always more or less human interest in little oddities of life. The latest is, a beer-drinking duck at the Silver Lake Golf Club near Orland Park. The duck, a mallard, about 4 weeks old, is said to be a steady beer-drinker. He creates much amusement by gobbling up bar-flies and then taking a drink of beer. Reports do not say whether this duck gets a jag on or not.

Mokena Appoints Special Police Officer

Mokena has opened war on reckless driving and in order to stop this menace before a serious accident occurs, the village board has appointed George Bennett, as special police officer. The later has served notice on a number of speed artists to cut out the reckless stuff and if the warning is not heeded, he will arrest the offenders and take them before Police Magistrate John F. Schultz. A good stiff fine or a jail sentence would help greatly to lessen the evil mentioned, it is felt.

ter came to Mokena Saturday morning for the truck. He notified the Will County sheriff's office of the robbery.

Mr. Benck says the missing youth had told him at one time, that if he had $50 he would buy a motorcycle and go to California. He says the young man had made remarks to other boys in his neighborhood, that he had been arrested seven times already on minor charges. He is a native of Kentucky.

Mr. Benck describes the missing boy as 5 feet six inches tall with brown hair combed back. Mr. Benck will appreciate any information as to the whereabouts of the youth in question.

A canvass, auto jack and rope which was always carried on the truck, were also missing from the truck, Mr Benck reports.

Ep. League to Close New Lenox Encanipment Sunday

The annual Epworth League Institute of the Joliet-Dixon district of the Rock River Conference of the M. E. church which has been held in the historic New Lenox camp grounds the past week, closes Sunday evening, July 28th. There will be a very good program on the closing day.

The attendance has been good during the week and a big attendance is anticipated for Sunday.

Forty years ago camp meeting time used to be a big event. Special trains used to be run on the Rock Island, Wabash and Michigan Central railroads and the attendance ran as high as 5,000 on one Sunay.

The old time religion predominated then and how much better the world would be today if we had the old time religion in action now.

Mokena Takes The Hornets

By Williams

Well at last that losing has been stopped, I hope. The boys showed the fans they could still play ball. They pushed the Chicago Heights Hornets in the face and then took their stingers away from them.

The team was under alteration, but it still clicked. Four players were absent and one was binged up before the game.

It seemed as tho accidents were the headliners, the Hornets had their scorekeeper and their second basemen binged up. The pitcher of rose to the surface to suggest that it might be time to cease drilling and case in their well to permit the oil to flow. However, each time officials and geologists have decided that only small pockets, and not the main pocket, were producing the oil.

Considerable quantities of natural gas have permeated from the shaft it is said, giving strength to the possibility that natural gas may be produced in this area.

The syndicate has leased 10,000 acres in the vicinity of the well for future operations.

Five Frankfort men are employed at this well.

If oil is struck there will be a mighty boom in this part of Will County. There is tense interest in the outcome of the search for oil.

Will Hold A Silver Tea

The Garden Department of the Tinley Park Woman's Club is inviting all Club members and their friends to a Silver Tea to be held in the yard at Mrs. Henry Wyman's home July 30, from three until five o'clock. The proceeds are to go toward the expenses of the Club for the ensuing year.

Come and enjoy the afternoon. In case of inclement weather, the Tea will be postponed.

Orland Woman's Club to Visit Pilcher Park

Mrs. Moore, Garden Chairman of the Orland Park Woman's Club is arranging for an all day tour on August 2 of the gardens and green houses of Mr. George Abbott at Joliet to view the display of cacti supposed to be the most famous of its kind in this country.

The tour will include a tour of Pilcher Park where luncheon will be served. Cars will leave from Creer's store in Orland Park at 10 a. m.

Arrangements for transportation may be made with Mrs. J. F. Schmadeke, dean of the club, on or before Thursday August 1.

The improvement of Middle Street with gas tax money will probably be under way by the middle of August as the plans and specifications have been submitted to Springfield for approval by the State Highway Department and work will proceed as soon as contract can be let.

Gold Hunters Work to Map Mineral Deposits

Canada Sends Out Surveying Parties Into Virgin Areas.

Ottawa, Ont.—Canada's newest and probably the strangest "gold rush" in its history is on.

The vanguard of an army of nearly 1,500 professional and amateur prospectors, who will search the whole of Canada and its possessions in the far north to find where the dominion's vast untouched mineral riches lie, has left for the Yukon, scene of many famous gold strikes.

One hundred and eighty to 200 other parties of gold seekers, made up of geological students and laborers, and supervised by experienced geologists, will start out for the far corners of the country, often through virgin territory, seldom before trod by white men, to find and map mineral deposits at the expense of the federal government.

The hunt will last a year and will cost $1,000,000. It is unique in that the prospectors will do very little actual prospecting and will be unable to stake claims. It will be more of a geological survey.

No Claims to Be Staked.

The men will work directly for the Canadian department of mines, and since the department is not allowed to stake claims, the gold hunters merely will note the location of their discoveries and move on to other fields. Ultimately the deposits will be "re-discovered" by independent prospectors, or developed by mining companies.

The party just sent to the Yukon comprised eight members. Later, when all the parties begin their work, about 50 fields scattered between Nova Scotia on the east coast and the Yukon on the west will be under survey.

Particular care is being taken in the selection of the surveying personnel. Young men imbued with the pioneering instinct will be favored and the survey will be considered as a challenge to their courage and enthusiasm.

While the work will take in the whole range of economically valuable minerals, their activities will be concentrated particularly in areas favorable to gold deposits.

Government officials look at the scheme as an excellent means of speeding development of Canada's gold fields. Canada is the world's second largest gold producer and it is the opinion of geologists that its production of more than $100,000,000 annually could be greatly expanded.

Geological Mapping.

"It is not so much a gold hunt as geological mapping," Dr. Charles Cam-sell, deputy minister of mines, said in discussing the scheme.

to southern Saskatchewan to bore for underground water in the dried-out areas. The occurrence of minerals will be a secondary search.

"There will be no prospecting. What will be sought are the indications of gold or other deposits. When these are found and mapped, private industry will carry on the prospecting and development.

"The personnel of the parties will vary from two to seven or eight members. With each will be a scientific man.

"While called a 'gold hunt' and, in a way, partaking of that nature, the plan really is a return on broad lines to our gold geological mapping expeditions, modified, for economic reasons, in recent years. We expect, however, that it will be the basis of a great stimulus to Canadian mining industry."

Biological Experiment

Opens Way to Germ Study

South Bend, Ind.—An important biological experiment which may eventually lead to the isolation of the germs that cause colds, influenza and infantile paralysis has been successfully completed at the University of Notre Dame, it is announced.

Has Wild Car Ride Down Mountainside

Missoula, Mont. — Bruised and dazed by his experience, G. F. Wilkinson, a railroad conductor, returned to his home here to tell of a wild ride for 29 miles down a mountainside on a runaway flat car loaded with steel rails with a dead man for his only companion.

Wilkinson was on the car when it got out of control on Evaro hill, near Arlee, Mont., and hurtled downhill at 90 miles an hour. Careening around curves through cuts and over bridges, it struck two motorcar speeders, killing F. A. Lombardi and Alfred Morkert.

Morkert's body was hurled aboard the flat car.

Wilkinson finally got it under control in a sag in the grade near McDonald, Mont.

out contamination by germ life of any kind.

The importance of this work lies in the fact that it permits a study of any single germ on a living organism, until now considered impossible. For more than 50 years this problem has puzzled scientists who hitherto have contended that life in an animal body was impossible without bacteria.

The presence of many forms of germ life has interfered seriously with the isolation in the past of germs that cause many of the most current human ailments. Consequently no serums or other effective preventatives for some of the ailments have yet been developed.

Common Duty to Wage Warfare on House Fly

Effort to change the name of the common house fly to typhoid fly is the motive behind a movement started by Dr. L. O. Howard, government entomologist.

The name, house fly," is too tame. The fly is accepted as a nuisance, but not considered as the dangerous insect it is. Government health authorities have proved that the common flies that buzz about homes and kitchens carry bacteria which can infect human beings with at least a dozen diseases in addition to typhoid.

Doctor Howard states, "Even if the fly were a creature difficult to destroy, the failure on the part of people to make any effort to reduce its number could properly be termed criminal neglect. As it is now an easy matter to do away with flies, this neglect becomes an evidence of ignorance. . . . It is the duty of every individual to guard against the occurrence of flies upon his premises."

As Doctor Howard says, it is no longer difficult to rid a house of flies. A reliable fly killer when sprayed in a fine mist is the most effective method of ridding the house of flies and other insects.

Science Works at Agricultural Problems

More Things Done for Farmer Than Ever Before.

Wilmington, Del.—Contributions science is making to agriculture are reviewed in a statement issued here from the office of the Du Pont Agricultural News Letter.

"A survey of the efforts of scientists shows that more things are now being done by science for the farmer than ever before," it is stated. "Better and more economical fertilizers have become available by the development of synthetic processes for producing urea in adequate quantities. Chemicals never before used in fertilizers are being added to meet deficiencies of plant foods in soils of various types.

"Entirely new and different insecticides are being produced from fatty alcohols, and research in the field of organic chemicals is expected to provide insecticides which, although deadly to insects, will be safe in all respects to man. Improvements in the application of sprays and extension of the time limit of effectiveness of insecticides have been achieved through the development of new sticking, spreading and wetting agents.

"Organic mercury dusts for seed disinfection, developed by research chemists, show control of various plant diseases which once could not be controlled. These disinfectants are proving so effective that seed treatment gives promise of being adopted as a regular farm practice, just as has been the use of commercial fertilizers.

"Entomologists are giving consideration to the use of motion pictures in colors for the study of major insect pests.

"X-ray photography is being used not only in animal husbandry and poultry work, but is also being applied to the study of insects and for examination of seeds to determine changes made in seeds by subjecting them to the action of X-rays and lights of different colors.

"Otherwise, the resources of science are being devoted to significant advances along agricultural lines. Large sums are being spent for research by federal, state and commercial agencies. Many scientists are busily engaged with investigations. The results of these expenditures and efforts cannot but be of tremendous value to the farmers of the nation."

Indians of New Mexico Select Own Officials

Washington.—Tribal customs of centuries of the Zuni Indians of New Mexico have been overthrown in favor of the American form of government, the Indian bureau revealed.

The Zunis have held their first popular election, naming a governor and village officers. As a token of office the new governor will carry a cane presented to the then governor of the tribe by President Lincoln soon after his election to office.

For centuries the Zuni governor has been chosen by the board of priests, composed of five of the oldest men of the village. The election was held after a campaign of a year by younger members of the tribe for the popular vote.

Town's Political Balance Hinges on Silver Price

Castle, Mont.—Residents of this once populous mining town are watching current maneuvers in world silver markets with keen interest.

Rising prices are likely to bring the city to life again, and that would totally disrupt the present political setup.

The situation is a bit peculiar. Back in the '80s and '90s, Castle was a booming mining camp. The depression of 1892 and the demonetization of silver started a decline.

But higher silver prices are expected to cause a revival of mining operations and the town may resume some of its former activity.

And, as has been said, that would disrupt the political situation.

You see, under the peculiar political situation Mayor Joe Martino and ex-Mayor Joe Kipp each control the same number of votes. So they've reached an agreement. Last year Kipp held the office as mayor, this year it was Martino's turn, and the next year Kipp is supposed to take over again, etc.

New voters would upset this balance of power.

Mayor Martino and ex-Mayor Kipp are the only residents.

Bees Win Court Case Over Their Neighbors

Marion, Ohio.—"Is the bee to be or not to be?" That is the question. It baffles city fathers here.

Several Marion residents have bee hives in their backyards. Neighbors complain that the honey bees carry pollen on their feet and dust it over their freshly laundered clothes hanging on washlines.

Mayor Clarence A. Bolin thinks little can be done about it. "You might as well try to keep the birds from flying over the city," he said. "You can hardly legislate against bees."

The Lucky Lawrences

SYNOPSIS

The luck that brought the Boston Lawrences to California at the beginning of the gold rush has deserted the present generation. From a 4,000-acre ranch, their holdings have shrunk to a small farm, and the old family home in Clippersville. Phil, now twenty-five, has gone into the iron works, Gail to the public library and Edith to the book department of a store. Sam is in school, and seventeen-year-old Ariel is becoming a problem. Phil is fascinated by "that terrible" Lily Cass, whose husband has deserted her. Young Van Murchison, scion of a wealthy family, returns from Yale, and Gail has visions, through marriage with him, of the turning of the Lawrence luck. Dick Stebbins, Phil's friend, has the run of the house. Ariel is sneaking out of the house at night for joy rides. Phil suggests, to his sisters' consternation, that they invite Lily Cass to the house. Gail goes with Van for a week-end with the Chippis, his uncle and aunt. She is received coldly. At a roadhouse Gail sees Ariel, at midnight. Next day Ariel admits she was at the place, and displays no remorse. Gail again accompanies Van to Los Gatos for a week-end visit.

"I may be engaged to be married this time tomorrow night," she thought, when she was in bed, reading. "There's a moment when one isn't, and then suddenly—one is. That's all there is to it. Girls do get engaged; almost every girl gets engaged."

She thought of the Fosters and the Delahantys. Three, busy, homely unmarried sisters in each family. Two in the post office, two teaching school, one in the library, one a stenographer. Gail's heart failed her.

It was not fair that some girls should travel, go places, do fascinating things, and that other girls should drudge away at the library, year after year, while hope died and youth faded and enthusiasms were spent—like the Fosters' and the Delahantys' enthusiasms—upon church fairs and preserving fruit.

"It's not right," Gail said solemnly to the shabby old silent room, through whose windows the hot smell of pear trees and burned grass was penetrating from the dark night outside. "There's nothing in character, if it only gets you what the Fosters and the Delahantys have got!"

"I'm not sure," she decided darkly, "but what Ariel's in the right! I'll bet she gets to London before I do!"

laughed, too, but she felt hot and uncomfortable.

In all it was an uncomfortable visit; the least happy she had ever had at Far Niente, even including the first, with its nervousness and shyness. Three men Gail had never seen before were absorbed in the topic of the golf tournament at Del Monte, and for a little while on Saturday afternoon Gail was excited by the possibility of their all going down to Monterey to try a day's preliminary playing.

But in the end it was decided that the three men and Van should leave before breakfast and go there alone.

"That is, I would," Van said, "if I didn't feel it would leave Gail in the lurch!"

"We'll take care of Gail," Mrs. Chipp said.

"We were going up to lunch with Ethel and play bridge," Mrs. Murchison reminded her in a light, droning voice not intended for Gail's ear.

"Oh, well, that's all right!" said Mrs. Chipp, who liked Gail, pleasantly. "We'll just leave her here to amuse herself, and the boys will be back for dinner, and we'll all go home Monday afternoon."

Gail had to protest; her library job would stand no more trifling. She must be back Sunday afternoon, positively.

Mason was going back, with fruit and vegetables. Gail leaped at the opportunity to go home with him.

It was arranged. The bridge players plunged back gladly into the mysteries of vulnerability and redoubling. The young men played tennis and Gail watched and laughed and applauded.

Later, going to the cabin to dress, she heard Mrs. Chipp good-naturedly reproaching somebody for something. The voices came from behind a screen of shrubs and tall flowers, where the hammocks were.

"... it was dreadful. ... I mean it was unmistakable. ... I mean it was enough to make him furious," said Mrs. Chipp's amused, indifferent voice.

Another woman's voice spoke quickly in answer, laughingly and indifferently, too, but with more vigor. Mrs. Murchison's voice.

Gail could not hear the first dozen words. But the last trailed through her consciousness as she escaped, scarlet-cheeked, out of hearing.

"... with a Clippersville girl!" The tone, the emphasis of the voice, interpreted the whole to her perfectly.

It then appeared that the four boys were going over to Del Monte that night, so as to play the Pebble Beach course early in the morning. Gail was careful not to let anyone suspect that it made any difference to her. But she felt hurt and sore. At half-past nine o'clock the roadster with the shouting boys in it departed on its seventy-mile run, and Gail found herself quietly in bed, reading again.

After awhile she let the book drop and lay thinking, staring into the dim cabin room with far-away, serious eyes, and with the bushy Lawrence eyebrows drawn together.

She felt very homesick. She wanted Sam and Ariel and Phil. Above all she wanted Edith, sensible, loving, loyal, thoughtful. She was torn with pangs of anxiety for them all.

"A Clippersville girl!" she said to herself in the night stillness. "Well, that's what I am. I don't know why that should make me mad."

Shamed, courageous thoughts possessed her; she plunged into them as into a river. Despite responsibility and precocious cares, she had done little philosophical thinking in her twenty-three years; she deliberately faced the situation now, faced her own soul.

The next morning she slipped away from Far Niente before any member of the family was astir. And with every mile of the home trip her heart grew lighter and her mind steadier and her quiet determination greater.

At two o'clock, cool and trim and sympathetic, she was back at her post in the library. She felt wearied, subdued, yet oddly content. This was duller than death but it was peace. No one would hurt her here, humiliate her here; she belonged. She was not only in her proper place, but she was doing a fellow creature a service. No animal creeping back into the safety of its lair ever felt a deeper sense of gratitude.

And then—as always on library Sundays—Edith was there, slipping about the alcoves, coming up to the desk to beam, to whisper to her big sister.

"Ariel home?"

"No," Edith explained too cheerfully, too naturally; "Dot Camp telephoned to the Greeley's to say that they might not be back until after dinner."

"But why didn't Dot or Ariel telephone us?"

"Lou said she said she thought our line was out of order—it never answered."

The sisters exchanged a level, expressionless look.

"That's a new one," Gail presently murmured drily.

"Well, that's what I thought," Edith agreed reluctantly.

"Where do you suppose they are?"

"Oh, just on one of those Sunday runs, when they eat greasy fried chicken off dirty board tables, and think they're having a wonderful time!" Edith said impatiently.

At six Dora Foster came in, and Edith and Gail could walk home

Little Lights on LIVING

WITHOUT WAX

WE WERE talking of antiques, when the Florentine gentleman of high birth said: "Come, let me show you my marble table in the garden." I followed him through the dark hall, stone paved, out into a beautiful sunlit Florentine inner court garden with great dark cypresses waving their tips in the breeze. Around the roots of these dignified old trees, centuries old, were little flower beds of bright posies confined by stone edges between which, in formal fashion, were inviting little paths.

It was a surprise garden in the rear of an uninviting looking stone residence set uncompromisingly on a none too wide side street in the city of Florence. Florence, Italy, is a surprise city anyhow, with its wealth of history, its tragedies, its bloody climb to light, its sacrifices in the name of power and religion, its wealth, its art and literature. What a panorama of human achievements and failures, Florence presents to a sympathetic heart, as one recalls the de Medicis, Savonarola, Fra Angelico, the Brownings and the host of others too numerous to name. When I am in Florence I never really know in what century I am living, for these old memories press persistently into my heart.

We have wandered far from our sunlit garden into which I had followed my host to see his marble table. "Is it an antique?" I inquired as I noticed great cracks across the beautiful marble slab. "No, it is not," my friend responded. "Listen to this story!"

"The marble cutters of Florence are wily old fellows," he continued, "often when their chisels slipped too far they cracked the marble slabs. Into these cracks they poured soft wax. After the wax had hardened the slabs were polished and the tables sold for solid marble." The Florentines soon realized the deception and began asking when buying tables for those "sine cera"—(without wax).

Interesting it is to note that our word sincerity comes from the little phrase "sine cera," without wax, which is precisely what it means—for to be sincere is to be genuine, whether it be a table or an individual.

White Sheers Keynote Summer Chic

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

THE forthstanding note in summer fashions is the increased interest in femininity. Wherefore the glory of diaphanous materials of rapturous loveliness once more, as in the picturesque days of old, hold sway in the realm of pretty summery apparel. Everywhere dotted swisses, embroidered or plain organdies and nets, chiffons and dainty sheers of multi-type flatter the summer landscape. The call for white is insistent in these weaves of elusive ethereal beauty with new and delectable colors putting forth rival claims.

First and foremost among the new sheers is mousseline de soie. The important message about these voguish mousselines is that modern science has succeeded in producing a washable cal of smartest midsummer trends. At the top to the left a cape and a ruche of crisp white net, which is really more of a tulle than a net, with two wax-white camellias, lend enchantment to a gown of the same tulle posed over white moire. A cluster of camellias snuggle in among the tulle flounces of the skirt.

The young girl seated below is wearing a darling ingenue gown. For this dainty frock Chanel uses yards and yards of ruffles edged with fine val lace on the cape and skirt of white mousseline de soie.

The pretty creature sitting opposite is gowned in finest of cotton net. The bodice top is modishly shirred. The bolero of matching net ties with a big casual bow at the throat. The voluminous skirt is the very picture of grace, walking, dancing or sitting

The next day she rose unrefreshed and dissatisfied, and dragged heavily through her preparations to go to Los Gatos, as if the prospect were anything but inviting.

It would have filled her with ecstasy a year ago; she felt dull and doubtful about it now.

Ariel, all helpful sympathy, came out to the gate when Van parked there, honking wildly, at ten o'clock.

"Here," he said, leaping out, "I'll take that!" He stowed Gail's suitcase in the rumble. The three stood smiling and gossiping in the soft foggy morning.

"I wish I were going with you!" Ariel said frankly.

"Well, why don't you come!" Van exclaimed, suddenly fired.

"Oh, no, I couldn't. I've got a date with the crowd tonight," Ariel protested, "and I couldn't anyway, I'm not dressed! And I couldn't anyway."

For an instant the matter hung fire, and Gail did not know whether or not in that instant Ariel sent her a glance of wild hope. Immediately the younger girl settled the matter, and was running back into the house shouting, "Have a good time!"

Despite her sister's protests, Gail felt like a murderer as Van's car shot away across the long bare road, away from dusty, dull Clippersville into the beauty and shade and coolness of Far Niente. The thought of that quick, hopeful glance of Ariel's—that glance that might not ever even have been sent or been thought of—haunted her.

Not that Ariel could have come, no. Obviously that would have been a mistake.

But Gail kept wishing that she, Gail, had urged it, had impulsively, ridiculously, pressed it. It would have made no difference in the outcome, for even little Ariel knew that she mustn't expect to go places just because Gail did. She wouldn't have come. She would know that they might snub her.

And yet the memory of the little flying pink figure and the shouted "Have a good time!" in Ariel's oddly deep voice would not let her be at peace. She was gnawed by hunger for Ariel, incessant and deep.

Van's mother proved to be a thin, dark, smart woman in a beautiful transparent gown of orange and black. She greeted her son with a fretful "Van, I suppose you know your father's furious at you, and making life simply wretched for me?" and gave to Gail only an abstracted frown.

"I think you were in school with my mother, Editha Petrie, in San Francisco?" Gail said, trying to seem at ease.

"I was in school with nobody's mother, and I won't be incriminated, and I am praying the Lord to grant me a long and prosperous thirty-one!" Mrs. Murchison said, to the company at large rather than to Gail.

"She'll never forgive you that as long as you live, Gail!" Van exclaimed in the laughter that followed. Gail

"I Was in School With Nobody's Mother!"

Van's father would be furious with him, going with a Clippersville girl. It served him perfectly right, wasting his time with a Clippersville girl. It did not matter whose feelings were hurt or were not hurt; it was only a Clippersville girl!

Her face blazed, her throat was thick and dry. She walked slowly up to the cabin, entered into its peace and shadiness quietly, and began her preparation for dinner in the brown-walled, chintz-curtained little room that was familiar now.

All the time her heart seethed like a boiling pot, and her thoughts went round and round dizzily. Her hands felt cold, and she was shaking.

"I'll be home this time tomorrow," said Gail, aloud, more than once.

What did it matter what that vulgar, smart, rouged, thin, dark woman said or thought! It did not affect Gail Lawrence; it did not affect Van Murchison. It did affect Van, of course.

Wandering about the room in a thin cotton kimono, she addressed herself, aloud.

"You poor fool! You thought you might be engaged tonight!"

"Well—you may be."

"I'd like to be, just to get even with her! I'd like to be so stunning, so smart, so popular that she was wiped right out of sight..."

"I hate her. . . . No, I don't suppose I hate her. . . . Yes, I do."

"I despise her! I'd like her to break her leg. I would. I wouldn't want her to get a cancer exactly. But I'd like something to happen to her!"

The childishness of her own monologue made her begin suddenly to laugh, and she found tears in her eyes.

This wouldn't do. There was nothing to do but go through with the evening's program with what dignity she could muster; the boys seemed to her very noisy, very much absorbed in their own affairs, at dinner, and after dinner there was a half-hearted game of roulette, in which Lenore and Mab Whiting won everything, while Gail lost quarters and dimes to a painful degree.

through the broiling late afternoon.

"Let's not have supper until seven. And let's get everything ready and then take baths and be beautiful!" Gail suggested. They fussed away in the shady kitchen together; Edith straining tea into tall glasses, Gail assembling the materials for one of her famous salads: chives, lettuce, enormous firm cold tomatoes, cucumbers sliced as fine as tissue paper.

They set the table out under the big oak in the side yard, close to the house so that the smaller furnishings could be passed through the wide-open kitchen window.

Dick and Phil arrived. They all sat about the table, while the last of the hot twilight died into a hot dusk, talking, murmuring, passing back and forth the old Brazilian silver salad bowl that Grandfather Lawrence had brought to Yerba Buena on that long-ago wedding journey.

The moon had risen and the strengthening silver light was beginning to drip down through the branches of the great trees that roofed the doorway.

"Where is that naughty Ariel?" Edith had asked drowsily, affectionately, and Gail, listening to the strokes of the cuckoo clock in the hall, had answered more reassuringly than she felt, "Only nine, that's not late!" when suddenly there was a stranger in the garden.

A stranger. At the first glimpse of him Gail's heart stood still, and her mouth filled with water. Horror. Horror. They were all lost.

The moonlight touched the star on his breast. Dick was the first to speak, in a quick, authoritative voice.

"What is it, Officer?"

"There's been a bad accident up near the cement works. A little girl has been killed—" the man began.

Gail was beside him, fingers gripping his arm.

"My sister!"

"No, ma'am, it wasn't your sister. She was mixed up in it; I brought her over here to see your brother. She ain't hurt," he said, answering the wild question in Gail's eyes. "She's just run upstairs inside; I'm waiting for her. I seen you out here, so I came over."

"What happened, Officer?" Dick's voice asked. The others were stricken dumb.

"She was driving a car, sir, and another automobile hit her. She didn't have a license, and she's booked for that, and also on a charge of manslaughter. In the mixup, a little girl in a third car was thrown out on her head and killed."

"She's here now? My sister, I mean?" Phil asked, in a dead, awful silence.

"Yes—she just now run in the house to find you."

"After her, Phil! She may kill herself!" Gail said sharply, in a whisper. Edith put her hands over her face for a moment, praying, before they all ran together toward the kitchen door.

TO BE CONTINUED.

If this be a good working rule for Florentine tables, to be genuinely sincere tables of solid marble, isn't it also a silver rule for you and me to follow in daily life, to be found always "sine cera"?

THE ABILITY FAMILY

THE best neighbors I ever had were the Ability family. There were eight in the present family, one child died young. The father's name was Reliability, the mother's Responsibility. They were each well named. The father had the respect and confidence of all he met in business—people, even strangers, felt him to be trustworthy. The mother played her part, too; after visiting her household, one could be assured that she carried her part of the home making for her husband and their six children, adding more duties each day to her already full program. Her name was Responsibility and she lived up to it. One would naturally expect a strong family of children from such parents, and such was the case.

Their first child, who grew to be strong and stalwart, they named Respectability. He was an upright chap. He thought well of himself and justly so, for he lived persistently at his best.

The second child was named Stability, for at an early age he evidenced decided firmness of character. He was sure footed and steady as a rock. His opinions were always real convictions to him.

After a few years passed another child was born to this interesting family, not as strong in health as the first two children, but patient unto long endurance, with never a word of complaint. This child was calm and often silent with an inner reserve and strength that won from his friends great admiration and love. His parents called him Durability.

The fourth child was a joy to its mother. Nothing ever seemed to go wrong when this little fellow was about. Everyone loved him as he grew up, because he was thinking constantly of others. He would change his plans to accommodate others if need be. Unselfishness was his watchword. His name was Adaptability.

One child died young. Peevish and ill-tempered, he grew quite apart from the family traits. His name was Irritability. He was too unhappy to live long.

After the death of Irritability the Ability family was again augmented by two, when the twins came. Happy, good natured, lovable pair of youngsters they were. They brought sunshine and joy wherever they went. Everybody agreed that they should be called Affability and Compatability!

So this is the Ability family. How many of them have you met in your circle of friends? Do you wonder the name of this family was ABILITY?

type—comes from a tubing as every woman and lovely as ever was. Every woman who heretofore lamented the fact of the un-washability of the exquisite mousselines which are so dear to her heart will rejoice at the good tidings that there is a new mousseline de soie which actually can be laundered.

And here's some more good news—a mousseline de soie which is shadow-patterned in self-color. You'll love it! Makes up adorably over a taffeta foundation. Comes in white or pastels, with first honors going, however, to white, since white keynotes to summer chic. For that "one more" party frock to add to your summer collection, why not choose plain or shadow-patterned mousseline de soie?

The lovely, white frothy, filmy, vaporous frocks in the picture are typi-

FOR GARDEN PARTY By CHERIE NICHOLAS

Quaint, old timey frocks are new fashion for garden party wear. This one is of white mousseline de soie (a favorite fabric this summer). It is piped with mulberry. The broad-brimmed violet colored bally bunt hat is flowered in violet shades matching the corsage bouquet. It is a very pretty custom which has been revived—that of wearing flowers to match the posies on one's hat. Imagine a soft white straw encircled with a wreath of real African daisies with a necklace of the same daisies about your neck mounted on a velvet ribbon or a stiff old-fashioned bouquet posed at the front of a navy straw sailor, with a matching boutonniere in your button-hole. And here is the real thrill to this story—the very fashionable set is wearing real flowers in this way, fresh plucked from the garden or the florist shop.

gold kid shoes with gold buckles in her hair. Speaking of embroidered net, for a party frock which goes formal, who could think of anything more entrancing than the ensemble worn by the charming girl standing to the right in the group! Dots embroidered in delicate bonbon colors, pink blue and yellow, look confetti-like on their sheer white background. Pink satin ribbons tie the throat and the waist. In the graceful matching wrap with full cape sleeves, Mainbocher revives the "fascinator fashion" which is making a big hit with debutantes this season. The dainty tulle hood frames the face with an aureole of crisp little ruffles. It can be thrown back off the head with perfect ease.

FROG FASTENINGS USED EXTENSIVELY

Frogs have hopped into the middle of the fashion swim this season.

Frog fastenings are used on everything from evening gowns to summer suits, and lend an opportunity for original color contrasts and a new casual air for more or less formal costumes.

Time was when the field of the frog fastening was limited to pajamas, but that time is no more.

You'll be seeing them on the newest shirtwaist frocks this season, on suits of wool and linen, on blouses and summer coats, on beach frocks and evening gowns.

Schiaparelli uses gold frog fastenings down the front of a green dinner gown, in a manner both decorative and military.

Evening gowns often employ one huge frog fastening at the neckline, and lightweight woolen coats for summer are shown with frogs all the way down the front.

London Fashions of 1910 Influencing U. S. Styles

Fashions of 1910, arriving via London and the silver jubilee, are influencing the styles of 1935 in the United States.

Flowers, feathers, silk ribbons, laces, lingerie touches, are being worn in the 1910 manner. The vogue for outdoor dining has transformed the afternoon dress and garden party frock of 1910 into the daylight dining ensemble of 1935.

Cartwheel hats, reminiscent of "Merry Widow" days, accompany dainty printed silk suits, with the most feminine of blouses. Black silk taffeta slips rustle under cream-colored lace daytime coats and dinner gowns. Accordian pleated silks in the manner of Fortuny make hostess gowns to be worn against tufted sofas and modern Victorian interiors.

Says Horner Will Be In Corner

Editor News-Bulletin:

The primary is the place where the decision is made for either good or bad candidates in the list of those who want to be governor (both sides) the same old names to be chosen in the same old way.

The leaders will get together and choose two tools (they must be vote getters) who they can depend on to do their bidding in the next primary. It is all cut and dried.

There will be a Republican convention and the next morning the papers will have a big headline the Republicans endorse Brooks for governor. Two or three days later you will see in a big head line that the Democrats endorse Igo for governor but where does the honest party man come in?

The Republicans have their chance in April. Senator Earl B. Searcy made a good record for the State of Illinois and for himself. If those voters who want to get to Republicanism will rally around him and unite the down state party voters for Searcy they can put it over. Remember how Emmerson cleaned up the slate? Let's do it again.

As it looks now Brooks will slap enough Republicans in the Democratic primary to put Igo across and in return Igo will send enough Democratic votes to the Republican primary to nominate Brooks. Which one is elected don't matter, the Barr-Donovan, crowd has won. As soon as he gets in office the sales tax will be repealed and some way or tax will be thought of to take the poor man's money. I have eliminated the name of Horner, for if Igo gets in the race, Horner will be put in the corner.

So far there has not been any real Democrat mentioned. There are two good men in the party, Secretary of State Hughes and ex-sate treasurer, Barrett. Either one would make a good governor with either one of these men at the head of the Democratic ticket and Searcy leading the Republicans the voters would have someone to enthuse over. Let us vote to redeem Illinois.

Since writing the above Frank McClure has announced himself as a candidate for governor. That gives downstate Democrats a man to rally around. Will write more about him later.

The Republicans have their chance in April. Senator Earl B. Searcy made a good record for the State of Illinois and for himself. If those voters who want to get to Republicanism will rally around him and unite the down state party voters for Searcy they can put it over. Remember how Emmerson cleaned up the slate? Let's do it again.

As it looks now Brooks will slap enough Republicans in the Democratic primary to put Igo across and in return Igo will send enough Dem-

GAS HEAT

Investigate our Special Summer offer—install gas heat now and pay nothing until October

EVENTUALLY you'll have modern, automatic gas heat. When your neighbors tell you of the joy and comfort that gas heat brings into their homes you'll want it, too. Then why not have it now? There's no need of putting off the day when you'll have this twentieth-century convenience. Before you order fuel, get the full facts on gas heat.

Now at low rates, every home—even the most modest—can afford gas heat. Rates for gas are now one-half of what they were in the 1930-31 heating season. And our special offer lets you try before you buy. We'll install it at our expense and you pay only $3 a month rental during the first year for the equipment in the average home. This charge will be included in the bill for the gas you use. Use it for one month, two months or a year.

There are many reasons why you want gas heat. It ends days and nights of coal shoveling... of hauling ashes... chopping kindling... the anxiety of watching fires, setting dampers. Walls and drapes stay clean, free from dust, grime and soot. There is no more tracked-up dirt from the basement.

SUCH IS LIFE—Curious

Sweden's Riksdag Is 500 Years Old

Fetes, Ceremonies and Pag- eants Mark Birthday.

Washington. — Sweden's parliament has just celebrated its five hundredth birthday. Pageants, fetes, and ceremonies were held throughout the nation, especially in Stockholm, and in the little village of Arboga, a few hours distant, at the western end of Lake Malaren.

"The first riksdag (parliament) was convened in 1435 by Engelbrekt Engelbrektsson, leader of the national movement against union with Denmark and Norway," says the National Geographic society. "A new monument to this great Swedish patriot was unveiled at Arboga on the first day of the celebrations.

Greater Than King.

"The modern riksdag, whose power is greater than that of the king, now meets in the low, square house of parliament, set on one of the many islands that make up Stockholm, a city that offers a beautiful background for pageantry, and where the greatest celebration took place.

"The oldest part of Stockholm is on the island of Staden, where Birger Jarl, traditional founder of Stockholm, built his fortress in 1255. Here are narrow, winding streets, high gabled houses, an ancient church, and the great square block of the royal palace. Nearby rises the slender spire of Riddarholms church, burial place of Sweden's kings and heroes.

"Every citizen in Stockholm points with pride to the new town hall, completed only 12 years ago. The copper roof was financed by popular subscription, and on each six dollar plate is engraved the name of a separate donor. Built of red brick, in a style at once medieval and modern, the straight, severe walls and tall, square tower are mirrored in the waters of Lake Malaren.

"All Stockholm is waterfront. Not dingy, crowded wharfs, but endless miles of clean, granite quays, where hundreds of boats dock daily—giant ocean liners, fleets of little steamers and ferries bringing commuters from green, island suburbs; trim private yachts and motor boats, and little white sailboats loaded with cargoes of birch logs for city fireplaces.

Harbor Always Open.

"In summer, when the long northern twilight has faded, myriad lights are reflected in the dark waters of the lake. Even in winter the harbor is kept open by icebreakers, though it is in the same latitude as southern Greenland.

"Swedish food is world famous, and Stockholm cooks live up to their reputation. The city is rich in restaurants—gay sidewalk cafes; smart, scintillating establishments, and queer, Bohemian cellars. The most distinctive feature of a Swedish repast is the smorgas-bord, or table of hors d'oeuvres. There are salads, cold meats, cheeses, pickled herrings, caviar, anchovies, sausages, baked mushrooms, dark breads, and the grayish-brown, unleavened cracker called knackebrod. Heap your plate high with these, drink generously of good Danish beer, and forget that a full course dinner is yet to follow."

THE ABUSE OF TRUST

By
LEONARD A. BARRETT

It is an exceptional morning newspaper which does not record one or more violations of trust. An official of a bank has been found guilty of misappropriating funds, a city official is found short in his accounts, an auditing committee discovers discrepancies in ledger entries of trust companies. This abuse of trust may assume another form, not in misuse of funds but in misuse of power or betrayal of confidence. The manager of a concern proves unfaithful to his board of directors, an executive in a high place of responsibility double crosses his friends, an employee violates the trust his employer places in him. Most of the wrong doing in the world is attributable to the abuse of trust.

Undoubtedly there are circumstances which present grave temptations to prostitute one's power to a dishonest end, but in the long run it never pays. Many times the exercise of this imposed trust conflicts sharply with one's

These blankets are light weight and warm as befits summer nights.

Slip Cover Styles.

The vogue for slip covers has reached a high water mark. It has been a score of years or more since they held the attention of decorators as they do today. The old idea was to protect the furniture upholstery from summer wear and tear and to introduce a cool element into the furnishings. Today the former remains one of the features and the latter should also, but decoration pushes this somewhat into the background. The slip covers of today stress decoration above all else. Perhaps we should call them ornaments plus, and let the last word stand for protection and coolness.

The material for slip covers used to be linen, chiefly because linen is the coolest of textiles that are durable. They were frequently white since this is the coolest tone to the eye. Couple this with the coolness to the touch and it is an ideal combination in a hot weather textile.

Today the textiles may be linen, cotton, silk, rayon, etc., and the color is seldom plain white. As a matter of fact colors are apt to be gay and consequently warm in tone. When solid tones are chosen, they retain color as a pronounced feature, the hue being black, seal brown, rich yellow, Chinese red, etc., more often than light tints. If the color is subdued vivid bindings are used for seams and edges, thus promoting color schemes and retaining notes of brilliance.

BIDS DEFIANCE TO HOT WEATHER

PATTERN 2319

The hot weather brings us to the problem every woman of generous proportions must cope with—how to keep cool and fresh looking on those wilting days? Well—Looking Cool goes a long way, and pattern 2319, with its loose, easy cape sleeve, soft treated waistline gives you a mighty cool outlook on life. And very flattering, too, are the graceful folds of the cape that does wonders to equalize proportions. The darts over the bust and at the waistline cleverly contrive to avoid a too-fitted look at the strategical points. Pick a summery printed voile or other sheer.

Pattern 2319 is available in sizes 16, 18, 20, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46. Size 36 takes 3¾ yards 39 inch fabric. Illustrated step-by-step sewing instructions included.

Send FIFTEEN CENTS (15c) in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for this pattern. Write plainly name, address and style number. BE SURE

Jack Lovelock, the brilliant miler from Australia who is a student at Oxford, England, has been meeting some of America's best runners and more than held his own against at the base and has branches extending 60 feet from the roots. As many as two tons of grapes have been taken from the single vine in a season.

Lindbergh Watchdog Balks His Landing

North Haven, Maine.—The German shepherd dog that watches over two-year-old Jon Lindbergh wouldn't let Col. Charles A. Lindbergh land his airplane here recently. Colonel Lindbergh, flying here to be with his son and members of the Morrow family, circled the island several times and then dropped toward the private landing field near the Morrow residence. Little Jon's pet and constant companion was loose and didn't like the aerial intrusion. He raced onto the field, yelping, and the flyer had to zoom upward again to avoid killing the dog. A caretaker had to lure the dog away and tie him before Colonel Lindbergh could glide to a landing.

Elizabeth Langford, a bank clerk of Atlanta, Ga., won first place in the national oratorical contest, sponsored by the American Institute of Banking, at Omaha, Neb. Her oration on "The Banker's Service to the Community" and her excellent delivery brought her a cash prize of $500.

personal desires and responsibilities, but he who refuses to sacrifice honor for what appears to be a shining prize is bound to win out. This idea is splendidly illustrated in the book, "Oil for the Lamps of China." Success came at last to the hero of the story who steadfastly refused to abuse the trust placed in him.

Perhaps the struggle through which many persons are passing these days is a call back to the integrity and simplicity of life of our forefathers, who considered the honor of one's name greater possession than mere material wealth. It would be very interesting to call the roll of the men and women of the past who refused to sell their honor for a mess of pottage.

In the career of the late Jane Addams we have the finest possible illustration of fidelity to trust. J. G. Holland in his little book, "Katherine," writes, "Highest art is highest ministry to human need and no man has the right to prostitute his art to a selfish end." That was the spirit of Jane Addams. Daughter of a wealthy family, possessing the culture of both university training and extensive travel, she shared these privileges with the exploited classes. The institution known as Hull House in Chicago will remain a perpetual memorial to the ideal that no one has the right to misappropriate power, be that power control of money, the possession of talent, influence or opportunity. "Trust" in the final analysis demands fidelity to duty in scorn of consequences.

Book Covers Like New

Taking a cue from the public library's practice of varnishing the backs of new books, some booklovers are doing the same thing with their own volumes. A light, clear varnish, applied in a thin coat with a good varnish brush, will preserve the original freshness of cloth covers.

The competent homemaker has her two sets of blankets, the heavy ones mentioned, and the lighter ones described, each set for its special weather. It is a seasonable time now to make such divisions, which will prove a saving if planned rightly. The heavy blankets will be moth-proof if they are laundered either at home in lukewarm soapy water and rinsed in water of the same temperature, still having a little soap in it if blankets are pure wool. As soon as thoroughly dry, bone dry as is sometimes said, wrap, in newspaper and put well-marked bundles in a summer storage closet. Or they are more easily put away if the homemaker has a cedar chest.

Mend the old lightweight blankets, if they need it. Patch them with the good parts of old blankets too worn for other use. Darn with woolen yarn, fine, and matching in color, when darning will suffice. Cut down the blankets when side edges are torn or worn through and make them to fit single beds or cots. Bind all edges for uniformity. Or, if the ends are not worn and can be left as is, hem or bind side edges. These reconstructed blankets will wear several years during their special season. They are recommended for summer camp and cottage use.

A new type of summer blanket is made of homespun textile. It may be machine or hand woven. Some of the colors are as beautiful in tints as the flowers in the garden, or the blue of the sky through a mist, or the first delicate shoots of trees in the spring.

Schiaparelli's printed silk suit with formal rows of white flowers on a brown background shows her new sleeve treatment having a wide pointed shoulder effect. The shirred fullness in the front of the skirt is another new note.

EXAGGERATED STATEMENT

"My great-grandfather could have bought this whole township for a song," remarked the man from town. "I've heard them stories," replied Farmer Cornfossel. "If they was all true there wouldn't be anybody ownin' real estate except musicians."

Zeb Out of Luck

Zeb Boggs dropped by Jed Hoskin's place one afternoon in hopes of mooching a little liquid refreshment. However, Jed didn't appear to get the idea and finally Zeb threw out a hint: "That persimmon beer you made must be gettin' right good by now."

"It's too darned good," Jed replied. "The blamed stuff puckered up the necks of the bottles an' now I can't pour it out."—Grit.

NEW AND USEFUL CROCHET DESIGN

By GRANDMOTHER CLARK

This beverage set can be crocheted at very little expense. It consists of six six-inch tumbler doilies and six cups to hold glasses. The crochet work is simple and the inexperienced should have no trouble crocheting it. It's practical and also adds to the refreshment service appearance. If not wanted for your own use give it a thought as a gift for someone who will appreciate it. It is a very popular number with crochet workers who are ever on the lookout for something useful in novelties.

Package No. 730 contains sufficient size 16 cream Mountain Craft crochet cotton to make the entire set, also illustrations and instructions, and will be mailed upon receipt of 40c. Illustrations and instructions only will be sent for 10c.

Address—HOME CRAFT COMPANY, DEPARTMENT B, Nineteenth and St. Louis Avenue, St. Louis, Mo.

Inclose a stamped addressed envelope for reply, when writing for any information.

Religious Ratios

If the population of the world, approximately 2,000,000,000 people, were reduced proportionately, according to religious faith, to 100 persons, the Columbus University Press has estimated, there would be 38 Christians, 19 Confucianists and Taoists, 12 Hindus, 11 Mohammedans, 10 Animists, 8 Buddhists, 1 Shintoist, and 1 Jew.

NATION BECKONS SOCIAL PIONEERS TO NEW FIELDS

In the Civil war period it was Horace Greeley who bade young men, "Go West." Many of those who had worn the blue in the great conflict sought the frontier in the hope of finding livelihood and then going on to fortune. It was their presence which made the West different from the East in ways which have never yet been reconciled.

For modern youth there is no great area of land awaiting settlers. If a college graduate seeks a place upon a frontier he must select the only frontier that is open. He must become a social pioneer in the field where urgent problems are to be taken apart and then recast in a form that shall be workable. An entire nation is waiting for adjustments in its vital affairs.

These new degree holders are equipped psychologically for the work that demands attention. During four formative years they have realized day after day that human arrangements good enough in the past have failed to continue the comfort and the security of which America has boasted.

By slow and painful steps the most able of the young people will make their way to positions of authority. As the opportunity appears they will apply their talents to the reorganization of the country in which they will be dominant. "Uncle Dudley," in the Boston Sunday Globe.

PIGS THRIVE ON BANANAS

There's a faster way of producing hams and bacon than feeding pigs all the corn they will eat. "Give them some bananas," says Hawaii producers.

As in other parts of the United States, the agricultural experiment station is an important feature in the territory of Hawaii. Prof. L. A. Henke, animal husbandman of the University of Hawaii, has just announced the results of a banana diet for pigs. A 25 per cent ration of the fruit puts on weight more rapidly than a full grain ration.

Chicago Heights

the Aces, Wilhelmi, was switched to left field where he slipped and fell while chasing a fly. He rolled over and threw his shoulder out of place. Jim was at third during field practice when he wrenched his back.

Brown was practicing earlier in the week when he was hit by a pitched ball and received a broken rib.

Mokena scored first and held their lead thruout the game. They scored 3 in the first; one in the 2nd; one in the 3rd; three in the fourth.

The Hornets scored one in the second; two in the 3rd; one in the 5th; two in the seventh. The game was rather noisy and would give Tinley's team a good race for fighting and kicking. Well so much for that game. Lets go out and root for the boys Sunday.

Bringing the News

DOWN to SIZE

BIG NEWS STORIES often keep alive for weeks or months until readers are confused or overwhelmed by the mass of printed detail. Occasionally readers fail to grasp the true aspects of such a story when it comes to a head, because they missed the earlier developments. Typical news of this sort were the Hauptmann case before it came to trial; the Italo-Ethiopian fracas; Philippine independence and old-age security legislation.

WILLIAM C. UTLEY, whose syndicated articles appear regularly in this newspaper, analyzes each case of this kind. In a single story he presents all the facts that are essential to enable the reader to conclude for himself what the outcome should be. He covers sport as well as government, business as well as every-day life. You'll find his work anything but dull—it will often give you a chuckle.

Pennsylvania Railroad, Bell Telephone and Telegraph's Bell System combined. The Chief Executive gets $75,000 a year salary. How many private executives earn more? As revealed by the Securities and Exchange Commission, 58 corporate executives last year received bigger salaries than the President. Last year General Motors Corp. paid $553,367 to its three highest salaried executives—their identity remained secret. Highest salaried executives whose names were published were George C. Crawford, President of Jones & McLaughlin Steel Co., and Charles M. Schwab of the Bethlehem Steel Corp., each with a yearly $250,000. Sol. A. Rosenblat, Film Code Administrator, reported last Summer that 110 film folk received 1933 salaries higher than $75,000. One star was said to earn $15,000. In 1933, 4,000 Americans enjoyed net incomes higher than the Presidential salary. But these include returns from investments and other sources which are also available to the President.

Good PRINTING — Costs Less

There is an old saw . . .
"Whatever is worth doing is worth doing well." Especially in this time of printing. Printing, handled as we know how to do the work, is a good investment of money.

Ancient Currency

"Ring money," was used by the Egyptians. The rings of precious metals were circular but a slight gap was left, that the rings could be formed into a chain. This substitute for money found its way to western Europe and the British Isles.
